Everyone welcome.

The Rockhampton City Council and the National Trust of Queensland invite everyone interested in the heritage of the Rockhampton area to a public meeting on 20 February.

The meeting will discuss examples of Central Queensland's important built heritage, including its wealth of character residences, and how they contribute to the identity of the region.

Rockhampton Mayor, Councillor Margaret Strelow, will chair the meeting. She acknowledges the important buildings and character streetscapes that are an integral part of heritage-rich Rockhampton. Further, they provide people with a sense of place which recognises the past and looks to the future.

John Jackson, President of the National Trust of Queensland agrees that the Rockhampton area has so many wonderful character streetscapes, both commercial and residential, and therefore it is important to make sure they are developed in a way that their qualities are not lost.

Other topics under consideration:

- Rockhampton City Plan – Character codes.
- Forthcoming Council Amalgamation – how this might affect owners of heritage and character residences.
- Rockhampton Regional Council conservation of heritage and character values – how the public can become involved.
